Many little children used to play in the garden, which had green grass, colorful flowers, butterflies spinning around, and all types of fruits. The garden was as beautiful as heaven. One afternoon, the Giant arrived at his castle. He was amazed by how beautiful and well-maintained his garden was. The Giant went inside his castle to rest when all of a sudden, he heard voices of some children playing outside in his garden. He got very angry as he liked to live alone. He opened the door and stepped outside.

“You are very selfish!” cried the children while they rushed out of the garden.

The Giant enjoyed the peace he lived in without the children. But then, over time, his garden began to go dry without any grass or flowers. From that day on, the children played in the garden every day.
