

Name: _____

Date: _____

Homophones- Your and You're

- Homophones are words that have the same sound as another word but have different spellings and meanings.
  - ✓ Your- Describes something that belongs to you. (I love your jacket!)
  - ✓ You're- A contraction for you and are. (You're very smart!)

Use the word your or you're to correctly fill in each sentence.

1. I would love to visit your home sometime soon.
2. Let's go to your classroom and help the teacher.
3. You're going to help with chores this weekend.
4. Is your homework finished yet?
5. Darren wanted to play baseball this weekend, but you're going to be away.
6. Angie wanted to borrow your pencil.
7. I think you're an excellent singer!
8. Why did you forget your homework this morning?
9. Please don't put your feet up on the coffee table.
10. I would like to meet your best friend.
11. You're reading some of my favorite books!
12. The dog accidentally chewed up your soccer shoes.
13. This afternoon, you're going to bake a special treat..